IMPORTANT PENSION DECISION BY SECRE-TARY SMITH.

Secretary Smith has been dering the principles involved in this decision for several weeks, and so important did he deem when it was called to his attention by the Pension Board of Appeals he submitted the question Lochren, the Commissioner of Pensions, both of whom urred in the correctness of the decision. The text of the decision is in substance as follows:

cencurred in the correctness of the decision is in substance as follows:

To the Commissioner of Pensions.

Charles T. Bennett, late private, Company F. 13th Indiana Volunteers, filed his original application for an invalid pension under the provisions of the Revised Statutes on July 5, 1886, alleging that while in the service and in line of duty at Raleigh, N. C., about June 1, 1865, he was prostrated by sunstroke, from which resulted a disease of the head and loss of hearing. This claim was rejected by your bureau, February 18, 1892, upon the ground that the evidence dailed to establish the existence of any disability due to the claimant's Army service.

To entitle the calmant to a pension under the provisions of the second section of the act of June 27, 1890, it was necessary that he should be suffering from a mental or physical disability of a permanent character, not the result of his own vicious habits, which incapacitated him from the performance of manual labor in such a degree as to render him unable to carn a support; in which event he was to be entitled to receive a pension not exceeding $12 per month and not less than $6 per month. As the claimant was suffering simply from "slight deafness," which was so slight that he could hear a watch tick enchalf inch from each ear, the physical disability clearly failed to come within the requirements of the law, such "slight deafness" of necessity could not incapacitate him from the performance of manual labor, and yet the claimant was allowed the largest sum provided for under this section of the act of June 27, 1800.

The correspondence on the subject is quoted, and sheeperlate bith from the performance of mailes, and or the called and the opinion proceeds in part as follows:

The department will now consider which the method of rather first sevent severed the performance of the sevent severed the severed the severed severed the severed severed the severed severed severed the severed severed the severed severed the severed severed the severed severed severed the severed severed severed severed the severed severed and by a practice that he described to perform manual labor.

It is hardly necessary to present argument or to support by authority the proposition that neither the secretary nor the Commissioner can by order or practice supersede an act of Congress. The power of the Department, so far as orders and practice are concerned, is limited to an execution of the law, it ceases when an effort is made to supersede the law. You will, therefore, take such steps as are necessary to reopen this case and to pass upon it in accordance with the provisions of the act of Congress approved June 27, 1890, disregarding any order or practice with is in conflict with the plain letter of the law.

Secretary Smith in another communication to the commissioner of Pensions says that it is hardly necsary to present argument or to support by authority a robbery. On the contrary, they have said to me that nothing was stolen. Mrs. Hutchins told a peculiar story, which has mystided her husband. He went home on Thursday afternoon and found his wife frame cottage which they occupied. She seemed to be unconscious, and her face rested on a crumpled piece of cloth. Some blood had flowed from her nose. Her mouth was covered by a thin strip of muslin, the ends of which had been crossed behind her head and then tied under her chin. The arrangement of the gag. if one could call it that, was such as to suggest that the woman had tied the cloth herself. The single thick ness of muslin could not have interfered much with and her feet were free. Her husband called in a doctor, who gave her some brandy and she revived Then she said that a man with immediately. black mustache and black whiskers, who had a black mask over his face, opened the door of the cottage a few minutes before her husband returned home.

She was at the top of the stairs at the time, and she asked the man what he wanted, she said. walked upstairs, struck her in the breast, and she did not know what happened afterward, as she was in a fainting condition until her husband found her. Hutchins is a young woman, barely years old, and she has been married to her husband, who is a railroad brakeman, about six months Children were playing in front of her home at the time of the nileged visit of the masked man, and me of them saw him. There were neighbors in the cottages alongside of her home, but she says she made no outery. There was no sign of a struggle, and nothing was disturbed in the cottage. Mrs. Hutchins may have suffered from an attack hysteria, or she may have wished to try the devotion hysteria, or she may have wished to try the devotion of her young husband. It is hard to say what such a girl might do. The piece of muslin which was tied over her mouth had on it the letters 'M. Y. M. E.,' printed apparently by a child, and also the words 'catch me,' written in a childish hand. Is it likely that a masked robber would use anything like that? She says that she was attacked by a masked man, but she gives no motive for such an assault. I have no right to say that she has invented a story, but the facts speak louder than words sometimes."

If the wholesale grocery house of Davis & Foster is not pushed, there is hope that it atil pull through all right. The same may be said of the brass and iron works, but it looks as though the There is remarkably little excitement on the considering the magnitude of the failure, and there is no crowd about the Foster bank. There is a general disposition to make the best of it. Neither Mr. Foster nor the cashier will make any further state to-day, saying they believe the statement made yesterday is sufficient until the reports of the assignees are made. Mr. Foster and his family are cearing up with remarkable fortitude under the great strain to which they have been subjected.

Cleveland, May 27 .- In response to a telegram sont to him by an afternoon paper, ex-Governor Foster answered as follows:

Thanks for your offer of space. My present mental distress precludes acceptance of your kind offer to any extent.

My failure simply illustrates the great folly of permitting one's self to be in debt beyond the reach of reasonably quick assets for relief when the hour of difficult borrowing comes. When people are its such condition, and the stability of existing financial conditions is sinket, the result is inability to borrow, suspension and failure.

Business is largely done with borrowed money. Confidence has for some time been shaken in the ability or capacity of the Government to maintain gold payments is evident. The natural impulse of banks in such times is to strengthen themselves against some possible and unusual draft. Then comes inability to borrow; decline in prices, suspension and bankruptice follow.

The country is possessed of enormous resources, which are at the command of the Government, and it should say and act in terms and ways that will satisfy the country without ambiguity or uncertainty that gold payments will be maintaired.

Charles Foster.
